

Solution

The problem can be solved using the backtracking technique. Queens are placed one row at a time, and each position is checked to ensure that the new queen does not conflict with any previously placed queen. If a safe position is not available, the algorithm backtracks to the previous row and tries another position. This process continues until all eight queens are successfully placed.